Specification

The examiner has not checked the specification to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors (grammatical, typographical and idiomatic). Cooperation of the applicant(s) is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant(s) may become aware of in the specification, in the claims and in any future amendment(s) that applicant(s) may file.

Applicant(s) is also requested to complete the status of any copending applications referred to in the specification by their Attorney Docket Number or Application Serial Number, if any.

The status of the parent application(s) and/or any other application(s) cross-referenced to this application, if any, should be updated in a timely manner.

Priority

Applicant is required to complete and update the continuing application information on page one of the specification.

Claim Objections

Claim 13 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s) or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form.

Claim 13 simply recites possible intended uses of the composition. This does not further limit the identity of the composition in any way.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 13 is indefinite in that it lacks antecedent basis for the recitation of "the construction element".

Applicant should note that the language "characterized in that" found in the claims has been interpreted by the examiner as having the same meaning as the "wherein" phrase. Furthermore, applicant is advised that the language "comprises only" is being interpreted as the closed "consisting of" transitional phrase.

Applicant should also note that the language "for applications which do not require great controls of charge and effort" is not being objected to/rejected at this time. The examiner considers the language confusing because it fails to precisely delineate the metes and bound of what applicant is trying to claim; however, this language is set forth in an intended use recitation and therefore fails to further limit the composition. Accordingly, it is not relevant at this time whether the language makes sense.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 10-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 5,302,331 to Jenkins or U.S. Patent No. 3,403,205 to Ingvar.

The references each disclose compositions that teach that particulate waste material can be formulated into concrete with cement, sand, aggregate and water.

The instant claims differ from the prior art only in that the prior art does not disclose the precise proportions of the claimed components. However, the references significantly overlap the amounts claimed herein: these amounts are standard concrete producing proportions of substances being added in known quantities for known reasons and are fairly shown by the prior art of record. Overlapping amounts of components have long been held to constitute a prima facie case of obviousness, absent some convincing showing of unexpected results.

See particularly columns 3-4 of Ingvar, the examples of Jenkins

Conclusion

Applicants are advised that any evidence to be provided under 37 CFR 1.131 or 1.132 and any amendments to the claims and specification should be submitted prior to final rejection to be considered timely. It is anticipated that the next office action will be a final rejection.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Eichenlaub discloses that it is well known to make aggregate from waste material. Those skilled in the art would appreciate adding this aggregate to known cement ingredients to produce concrete or mortar. Mallow et al. disclose immobilizing toxins as aggregate in a sulfur cement. Kutta discloses encapsulating wastes in an aluminous cement composition.
